THINK BEST NOT TO SHRIEK

REPUBLICAN CHIEFS WON'T CONVOKE

THE STATE COMMITTEE. That ie, Such is Their Present Bectston.
To Fight in the Course and to Fillbuster
in the Senate if They Are Benten,

It did not look yesterday as though the managers of the Republican State Committee considered it advisable to call the committee together for the purpose of interfering with the results of the last election for Assemblymen and Senators, especially the latter. Several Republican newspapers and their Mugwamp ailies in New York and the Interior counties. having insisted that the committee should meet and fire off a gun or two, the matter was considered yesterday by Chairman William Brookfield of the Republican State Committee, Ex-Senator Platt, Senator Hiscock, and William A. Sutherland, lately the Bepublican candidate for Attorney-General. It is also sus-pected that Gen. James Husted and John W. lwight the member from the Twenty-eighth district, were present. The conference took place in the Fifth Avenue Hotel just as the atternoon was closing.

From the best of sources it was learned last night that both Mr. Platt and Senator Hiscock first believed that the committee should at first believed that the committee should meet and enter a solomn protest against the Democrats in general and against Gov. David Bennett Hill in particular. Chairman Brookeld at first was of a like opinion. He had been absent from the city for several days, and all Republicans were awaiting his return. Thinking that when he appeared the committee would surely be called together at his command.

tee would surely be called together at his command.
But after things had been talked over yesterday it was practically decided not to turn out the committee, but to take other means, especially through the courts to protect the rights of the Hopublican candidates whose election is disputed.

Ex-Candidate Sutherland announced his readiness to contribute his legal services, and also to select in the counties where the elections are in dispute capable Republican lawyers to cooperate with him. This was considered a fine scheme, and then it was actiled that all these lewers should hold a little private conference of their own and lay out a plan of warfare. conference of their own and my out a plan of warfare.

Should the courts decide against the Re-publicans a system of filibustering will be adopted in the Senate at Albany by the Re-publican minority this winter. One of the gen-ticenen present at the conference yesterday

There would be no use in calling the State Committee to assemble for the purpose of shricking a protest. All Republicans know how we feel about this matter, and the committee would but formally record these views. That would do no good. If there is to be a revolution we are ready for it."

There was more talk of this chromatic character, but all the same the Republican State Committee will not, unless new light shines on the heads of the party, be called together to express its disappointment over the situation.

WOULD PULL THE PENCE DOWN. West Siders Contemplate Long Island City Anti-railroad Tactics.

The Bailroad Committee of the Board of Altermen had a hearing yesterday on Alderman Roche's resolution that the tracks of the Hudson River Bailroad Company on Eleventh avenue be fenced in. Ex-Congressman Quinn, who appeared for the West Side Citizens' Asociation, said that he believed that the reso lution offered by Alderman Roche was in the interests of the railroad company, and that Alderman Boche was ignorant of the spirit of the resolution five minutes before he introduced it.

'In other words," said the ex-Congressman "Alderman Roche was used simply as a machine. I cannot imagine how any sane man could make such an insane suggestion. There isn't a village in this State that wouldn't scorn such an outrageous proposition. The West Side Citizens' Association will combat it to the bitter end, and if the fende goes up the association will pull it down. If Alderman Roche had dared propose such a blockading of any avenue in his own district, he would be hanged and burned in effigy by his constituents. He would be asharmed to show his face in his district afterward."

Frederick Mabbitt, the counsel for the association, William M. May, and John Clinker protested vigorously against the erection of the proposed fence, and asserted positively that if it was put up it would be pulled down. Alderman Roonan pledged himself to vote against giving the orivilege to any corporation to fence in one inch of the streets.

Superintendant Toucey of the New York Central Company said that he was present only to learn what the opinion was concerning the fence.

Mr. Quinn replied: "Our people would rather chine. I cannot imagine how any same man gainst the fence.

the officer. The Sergeant took no notice of the complaint.

Mrs. Kennedy was arraigned before Justice of itelly at the Tombs Court yesterday morning, charged with being drunk and disorderly. As she is somewhat demented, she sailed to make an adequate defence, and the lustice sentenced her to three months on the itsland. Several reporters explained the case to Justice O'Kelly, who then called the woman up again. On this hearing she was remanded until this morning.

It was said by officials in the Tombs that Officer Gallagher was drunk when he brought the woman there yesterday morning. Charges against Gallagher will be made at Police Headquarters.

TRYING TO JUSTIFY A SENSATION. The Author of a Romantic Newspaper Yara

Called Upon to Prove It. Andrew Butcher, otherwise known as Alex-ander Gibson, was indicted by the Grand Jury yesterday for a violation of the Election law. The World sent reporters, just before the last election, to look up instances of illegal registration, and they met Butcher or Gibson in a is account of how he had been hired by De-tective William G. Irving, who had been en-gaged by the Republican State Committee, to colonize voters in the Seventh Assembly dis-trict.

Butcher swore to an affidavit to this effect; also that he had already colonized forty-seven illegal voters in the Seventh Assembly district, and then the World published this stuff. Detective Irving thereupon promptly began a libel suit for $75,000.

Then it occurred to the World that it might be well to find out whether there was any basis for its attack upon Detective Irving, and so it asked the Grand Jury to indict Butcher upon his own affidavit. Butcher was arraigned and pleaded not guilty yesterday.

Another Accident at the Erie Company's Pier in Piermont. NTACE, Nov. 27.—The pier of the Erie Company at Piermont, which was damaged to the amount of several thousand dollars less than two weeks ago by a tornado, was the scene this afternoon of another disaster much sadfor than the more damage to property. Ira Davis, aged 19 years, lies buried this evening under a heavy mass of coal and broken timbers, and is doubtless dead. Two others have been taken out badly injured, and whether others are buried can only be determined by the digging away of the vast body of coal. The cause of the accident was the falling in of a crib which separated bins containing coal of different sizes. There is at present 75,000 tons of coal on the pier in immense bins. About thirty men were working on one part of the pier this afternoon and shovelled nearly all the coal away from one side of the crib. The pressure against the other side caused the large crib to fall in and crush under its weight and that of the wast bulk of coal which went with it, several of the men who were working there.

and that of the vast built of coal which went with it, several of the men who were working there.

Workmen were soon examining the premises to see the extent of the casualty. The first man taken out was Patrick Corrigan, an employee of the company, whose leg was broken and badfy crushed. He was put on a hand car and taken to his home in Piermont village. The news that Ira Davis, who was popular with all the workmen, was buried under the ruins and probably dead, was carried to Sparkill, where his widowed mother lives. The poor woman hastened to Piermont and out to the seene of the accident, accompanied by two other women. When she came back a little later tears rolled down her cheeks as she told a reporter that Ira who was only 19 years of age, had been her sole support. It was believed early this evening that it would be a late bour before young Davie's body could be taken out.

Another victim was a foreigner, who had been working in the coal for some time. He could be partly seen by the workmen who were removing the ruins, and the motions of his body showed that he was alive. His legs were planed down by a heavy pleece of timber, but by several hours of hard work he was extricated late this evening. His injuries are serious. Some hold the opinion that there are two or three more men buried under the wreck.

TRAGEDY IN CONNECTIOUT.

James Hanley Kills Mis Brother in a Quarrei Over a Dog.

THOMASTON, Nov. 27 .- On Wednesday afternoon James Hanley, a dissolute young man who has been supported by his sisters and his brother Patrick for a number of years, began quarrelling with Patrick over the possession of a dog. The guarrel lasted for some time. and during it his sisters left the house to prepare a shirt for Patrick, who was about to attend a wedding. Patrick, wishing to end the quarrel, left the kitchen and went out to the front of the house. James then went into the pantry, and, procuring a big carving knife, ran out of the back door and around to the front of the house. The brothers met on the front operch, and James, without a word of warning, sprang on his brother and plunged the knife into his neck. Fatrick tried to escape, but before he could do so the knife had been plunged into him seven times. James then dropped the knife and ran away. Patrick crawled into the house and sank upon the kitchen floor, where he was found a few minutes afterward by his sister. On seeing her brother on the floor she gave a shriek, which aroused the neighbors, who notified the police. Physicians were summoned, but Patrick lived a short time only.

James, on leaving the house, went into the woods on the outskirts of the town, and there waited until after he cupposed all were in bed. Then he decided to return and pack up his wardrobe. The police, who were on the watch, allowed him to enter the house, and then arrested him. He was at that time perfectly sober, and said that he was sober at the time the murder was committed. He added that the crime was committed in the heat of passion and was not premeditated. front of the house. James then went into the

Will be made within a few days to extract the bullet. Mrs. Chapman is entirely conscious of her condition, and has expressed a strong desire to live so that she may be able to refute the scandalous stories which she knows that Searvant has been telling about her. Searvant made another statement in the jail yesterday. He substantially withdrew the story he had told about his intimacy with Mrs. Chapman told directly after his arrest and said that he had a two-fold reason for remaining at the house after he knew that his services were no longer required. One was that his ways a had to the provide the same of the condition. vices were no longer required. One was that his wages had not been paid, and the other that he might prevent the removal of Mr. Chapman to an asylum. He intimated that there was a certain person who desired to have Mr. Chapman incarrecrated, and that he had made up his mind to prevent this. He does not mean, he says, to disclose the cause of his murderous rage against Mrs. Chapman until his trial comes on.

Heary S. Ives Follows Miss Sears, the Opers Singer, to Lockport.

LOCKPORT, Nov. 27.-The Napoleon of Finance, Henry S. Ives of New York, has been here for the past few days. He has endeavored to keep his movements quiet, but it is gen erally known that he is dancing attendance to Gertrude Sears, the handsome opera singer, formerly with the Bostonians and a year ago with J. C. Duff's company in New York. Mr. with J. C. Duff's company in New York. Mr. Ives has been very attentive to Miss Sears for the past two years. She returned this summer from Paris, where she has been studying for the grand opera stage. She was taken ill in New York, and returned home here, where she has been convalencent. Miss Sears and Mr. Ives take drives together when the weather is favorable. Mr. Ives comes down every morning from Buffalo, where he is stopping, returning in the evening. His smooth, boyish face and glasses make him look like a striish college professor. The attentions paid Lockport's fairest singer by this prominent New Yorker have caused considerable comment.

One would never think to look at the portrait of Horr Hermann Sudermann, afforded in the frontispiece of his novel, "Dame Care," trans lated by Bertha Overbeck (Harper & Brothers) that he could be a man of gloomy impressions. His cheeks are round, his brow smooth, his eye sefene. There has been persistent speculation smong the curious as to whether the actor feels what he portrays. If the same specula tion may be extended to the novelist, w should say of Herr Sudermann, judging by his picture, that he had not wronged himself in this fashion. We should say that he had never entertained pessimism in his own bosom. though the pages which he has written con tain a preposterous amount of it. Herr Suder mann belongs to that group of young German authors who regard Ibsen as an epoch maker and who have hastened to assist him in the distinguished business of epoch manufacture He became famous in Germany a few years ago through the production in Berlin of a play called "Honor." This was a play marked by the Ibsen traits. It was gloomy and dis tinctly shocking; and, what possibly is not a distinctive trait of the Ibser dramas, it was highly effective in the hands of capable actors. A later play. "The Fall of Sodom." from the same pen, was still more gloomy and shocking, but much less effective. Both plays were produced in German at the Amberg Theatre in this city, the distinguished actor, Herr Poseart, lending his rare abilities to a part in "Honor." But the shock, or at least the sort of shock, which distinguished the Sudermann plays has small theme of the plays was sexual turpitude, and there is almost nothing of that sort in the story. The gloom, however, is maintained There are degrees of gloom. Giovanni Verga's "House by the Mediar Tree," absolutely conconsidered, is far from being a cheerful story, but compared with "Dame Care" it is fairly hilarious. Like the Italian tale, the Suder mann narrative traces the sorrows of a family. There is loss of fortune; the head of the family takes to drink and arson; the heroic son is imprisoned; true love weeps on every page; the mother dies; grief is poured forth upon snowsovered graves at night-and there is much eise all heartbreaking, all of the sort that is ordinarily put nowadays into the most power ful melodramas. Herr Sudermann is classed, we suppose, as a realist, but we trust that this story is not realism. We should hate to think that the actual world could be so preposterous.

STUDIES IN CHAUCER: His Life and Writings. By THOMAS R. LOUNS-BURY, Professor of English in the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University. With a Por-trait of Chaucer. Three volumes. 8vo, Cloth, Uncut Edges and Gilt

While it would be too much to assert that the last word has been said on the subject of Chaucer and his writings, it is safe to say that these scholarly volumes will not be soon superseded. Professor Lounsbury's "Studies" cover almost every problem which has been connected with the name of Chaucer, while giving their fullest attention to the questions which lie in the way of true intellectual communion with the poet. His chapters discuss: "The Life of Chaucer."
"The Chaucer Legend." "The Text of Chauer." "The Writings of Chancer." "The Learning of Chaucer." "The Relations of Chaucer to the English Language and to the Religion of his Time," "Chaucer in Literary History," and "Chaucer as a Literary Artist." The work has a very full Index.
